Summertime, and the livin' is...

Easy! Well, maybe not "easy," but the mild temps have made for some great times outdoors with our beloved RRs.

In this July 15, 2022 edition of the NWRRC newsletter, we're featuring imagery of members and their dogs and we hope you enjoy it!

Further on down is Stacie Knudtsen, in front of the camera for once, with her RR Frankie, at Titlow Beach in Tacoma looking towards the Narrows Bridge.

We need your input and feedback! You're invited to submit information for our next issue - and we ask that you please do so by October 1, 2022 via email: info@atlassmarketing.com

We'd LOVE to use your pix! Please send us news, events and images you'd like us to include by Oct. 1st for the Oct. 15th enews.

This newsletter is emailed to the entire current membership list of the Northwest Rhodesian Ridgeback Club [NWRRC]. NEW: you can find archived issues here, on the NWRRC website!

NWRRC started in January 1989 and as a regional club, covers Washington, Oregon, and Idaho. NEWS from The Pacific Northwest region of Rhodesian Ridgeback Rescue, Inc (RRRI),

NEW DOGS to Rescue:

Cider: Cider is a 10 month old female RR surrendered after playing chicken with a car in hot pursuit of a rabbit. She broke both front legs. She is almost out of her 4 weeks in casts and will move on to 2-4 weeks in splints. She is currently being fostered by retired vets. She is looking for a forever home. Donations needed—she is a picky eater. In order to keep her at a good weight during recovery we need to supplement her kibble with raw. Please consider donating to her care - you can use this link:

TRAINING:

Proofing Your Dog Submitted by Lorraine Pedersen

I ran across the cartoon above and thought, "This says a lot!" Those of us who compete with our dogs know how hard it is to work with our dogs when there is stuff going on around us - you have to train your dog to work with distractions around it, called "proofing" your dog.

Proofing your dog will make your dog steadier in distractive environments (dog shows, obedience trials, parks, playgrounds - life in general!) and it will be easier to get his attention when distractions are around if you have done proofing. So the more proofing you do, the better attention your dog will give you. And it doesn't matter what you are training for, proofing will help with anything.
